

THE MEREDITH EAGLE.

VOL. IV.

MEREDITH, N. H., SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1883.

NO. 159.

LOVE'S LOST DAY.

When thou and I are parted presently,
This dead day's ghost, with white accusing fins;
Shall walk among our harsh un pitying days,
Saying "For lewdness have fashioned me,
And, lo! ye did defame my deity,
Butt of swineesses, took away my grace,
And set a horror in my fair self's place;
That self no tears can make again to be."

when for one of us vain days go by,
The while the other sleeps beneath the flowers
Headless of sunshines or soft April showers.
"Look ever in my eyes," this day shall cry,
Wherein, as in deep streams reflected he
Love's muted irrecoverable hours.

FRILLY BOBBIE MARION.

Rich or Poor?

BY HELEN FOREST GRAVES.

"So you've come back again, Jerome?" said old Mr. Sewell. "Well, we heard you was thinkin' of returnin' to Elm Mountain. Bad pennies always come back—ha! ha! And you didn't make such a big fortune as you calculated, eh?"

Jerome Clay leaned over the old zig-zag rail fence and rubbed his eyes. Had time stood still all these years while he had been in the South? For here was Farmer Sewell in the same old blue-checked overalls, with the same battered straw hat, the same wrinkles between brows, driving the same old red cows home through the twilight lane, where the scent of trampled spearin' came up, and the melancholy notes of a distant whip-poor-will sounded faintly on the purple silence.

And yet—and yet it was twenty odd years since he had left Elm Mountain, with all his worldly goods balanced in a bundle on his back. He had been a dashing lad of twenty-one, then; there were silver hairs in his black locks now, and he had left a dead past buried under the sweet magnolia groves. And here was Mrs. Sewell, just the same as ever, only a trifle yellower and more dried up. "Yes," Clay said quickly, "I've come back. And you are right when you say that fortunes don't grow even in bush."

"Goin' to your uncle's house?" said Mr. Sewell, leaning over the bars. "He's dead and buried, poor fellow. Always had a weak chest, you know. And the gals ain't no younger—the Three Old Maids we call 'em—ha, ha, he!"

And again the old farmer chuckled himself into a state of semi-suffocation. "Come in and see us," said he. "My daughter Aurilia she's come back a widow and does fallorin' and plain sewin'." The old woman's stone deaf, but she's dreadful quick at catchin' a person's meaning!"

And off he trudged, over the bruised patches of sweet smelling spearin', his broad figure vanishing into the gloom like a shadow.

"Three old maids, eh?" repeated Jerome Clay to himself. "Clara and Bess, and little Kate, the golden haired beauty, the soft eyed poetess, the wild little sprite who was a mixture of Undine and Queen Mab. Then, surely Father Time has not stood still!"

The light was shining out, as of old, from the red curtained casement, the great fire of logs was blazing on the hearth, and the three cousins greeted the returned wanderer with unaffected warmth.

They were changed, of course. What else could they have expected? The Beauty had grown sharp and freckled, and her lovely hair had lost its burnish, and she was not quite so tidy as she used to be in the old days about her ribbons and frills. Soft eyed Bessie's sweet voice had degenerated into a whine; she had grown round shouldered and lost one of her front teeth; and little Kate was stout middle aged woman, who reminded one of Undine no more.

But they were his cousins still—the girls who had played and romped and flirted with him in due arithmetical progression. And there still existed a bond of steadfast friendship, and he told them the story of the Southern wife who had been buried for five years under the magnolias, and they all sympathized, though even cried a little.

"I have brought my three children to the North," he said. "I left them in New York, and if I can get some genuine, whole-souled woman to take charge of my home, I'm thinking of settling here in Elm Mountain. Clara, dear, you need to be found of me in the old times! What do you say to undertaking this charge?"

The Beauty seemed to grow smaller, sharper, more business like, all in a second. If Cousin Jerome had come home a millionaire, she would have jumped into his arms.

But Clara Neely was not romantically inclined. To her, love is a cottage posse, and she had no charms.

"I couldn't, Jerome," she answered, quickly. "I'm not very strong, and I couldn't assume any responsibility of this arduous nature. Besides, I'm not fond of childhood. I'm greatly obliged to you, I'm sure, but I'd rather not."

Jerome Clabit his lip.

"Of course," said he, "it is for you to decide. But if Bessie—"

The poetess shrugged her shoulders, and laughed a light, shrill-sounding exclamation.

"Cousin Jerome," said she, "it's just as well to be frank about these matters. I wouldn't marry a poor man—not if I loved him like Romeo and Juliet. It's bad enough to scrape along as we do here, with only half what one requires to live on decently. But to plunge into poverty, with two or three children belonging to another woman—no, I thank you!"

For time, as may easily be perceived, had eliminated a great deal of the poetical element from Bessie Neely's soul.

The quondam Undine did not wait for the question, as far as she was concerned, but added, promptly, that she quite agreed with her sister in all these matters.

"It's such a pity you didn't stay here, where you were well off, Jerome," said she, in the pitying, patronizing manner which your genuine man most abhors.

"Dear pa, you know, always disapproved the situation of agent to the White Castle Place, at eight hundred a year, and cottage found, if you'd only been here on the spot. Pa used to know the old agent, and could have recommended you!"

Jerome smiled. "White Castle?" said he. "That's the big house on the hill, where we children used to peep at the roses and white grapes through the glass sides of the great green-house. A grand place, as I remember it."

Jerome Clay went away feeling rather depressed.

It is not the lot of every man to be thrice rejected in one evening.

"They think I am a failure in life," said he, half smiling, half sighing.

"Well, perhaps they are not wrong. People's ideas differ."

Aurilia Haven, the old farmer's daughter, had been a wild hoyden of a school-girl when Jerome Clay went South. She was a silent, pale woman of three-and-thirty now, who did the "tailor-work" of the neighborhood, and had hard work to get along.

But her dark-brown eyes lighted up when Mr. Clay spoke of his far-off home, and her cheek glowed scarlet when Mr. Sewell chuckled out:

"So the Three Old Maids wouldn't have nothing to say to you? Ha, ha, ha!"

"Do you blame them?" said Jerome.

"Well, no," confessed the old man. "Gals naturally want to better themselves nowadays. If you'd come back with your pockets full of gold, they'd sing a different song, you'd see."

Aurilia looked pityingly at Jerome Clay. She, too, had found life a failure, and in her quiet way did all that she could to comfort the tall, quiet man who had hired the spare chamber in her father's house for a few weeks, since his cousin had altogether omitted to invite him to be their guest at the old place.

She was not pretty—never had been—but she had a sweet, oval face, with dark-fringed eyes, and a mild, winsif expression which Jerome Clay liked.

And one day she spoke out what was in her heart.

"Mr. Clay," she said, "I can't help thinking of us old gals, little, motherless children of yours. If you will bring them here, I'll take care of them. I always liked children, and it shall cost you nothing. Father will let me have the big north bed-room for a nursery, and their board won't signify. They can go to the public school, and I'll make their clothes, if you'll buy the material."

"Aurilia, you are a genuine woman!" said Mr. Clay, earnestly. "None of my cousins have spoken to me like this."

"Perhaps—perhaps they didn't think of it!" faltered Aurilia.

"Possibly," dryly remarked Mr. Clay. "But, Aurilia," gently detaining her hand, "is it of my children only that you think? Have you no tender, pitying feeling—the sweet sensation that is akin to love, you know—for me? Aurilia, will you become my wife?"

Aurilia did not refuse!

"Now that you have promised to marry me," said Jerome Clay, "I will tell you all my plans, Aurilia. I have bought a house here."

"Here, Jerome?"

"Yes, here. Will you come with me to look at it?"

"I will go wherever you wish, Jerome," said the bride-elect, in a sort of innocent bewilderment.

Mr. Clay put her into a little carriage at the door, and drove her up the mountain-side, through the huge, stone walls in front of the colonnaded portico, where statues of Ceres and Prosperity stood in dazzling marble on either side, and an antique sun-dial marked the golden foot-steps of the God of Day.

"It's a beautiful place!" said Aurilia, looking admiringly around. "But why are we stopping here, Jerome?"

"Because, Aurilia," he answered quietly, "it is our home."

"You mean to tell me, dear," cried the delighted widow, "that you're being fortunate enough to receive the agency? I thought Mr. Wright—"

"Mr. Wright is the agent still," said Clay. "What I mean, is that I have bought White Castle and its grounds. This fine old house is to be your home henceforward, Aurilia."

"But, Jerome, I thought you were a poor man?"

"Did I ever tell you so?" he laughingly retorted. "Did I ever tell you to tell any one so? If the good people of Elm Mountain choose to believe me a pauper, it is fair to hold me responsible for their rash conclusions? No, Aurilia. In money, I am rich—rich beyond my wildest aspirations. When first I came to Elm Mountain, I believed myself bankrupt, indeed, in the sweet coin of love and human kindness. Sweetheart, it is not so with me now. It was your hand that unlocked the gate of happiness to me; it shall be your hand that is to reap the rich reward."

He bent and kissed her forehead tenderly.

"But the children?" she cried.

"The children are with their maternal aunt, at the Windsor Hotel, in New York," he answered. "The boy is soon to enter college, the girls are both engaged to be married to Southern gentlemen, and after a brief visit here, will return to New Orleans with their aunt, So, my darling, your tender solicitude was not required after all!"

Aurilia sighed softly. She had somehow longed for the touch of little children's hands in her own, the sound of small, shrill voices in her ear. But she looked into Jerome's loving eyes, and was satisfied. He loved her, was not that enough?

And the Three Old Maids are sharper, more untidy and shrill-voiced than ever, since they have realized the fatal mistake they made in refusing the overtures of their Cousin Jerome.

And a maneuvering, managing creature is the tenderest appellation they apply to Mrs. Jerome Clay. Things would have been so widely different if they had only known!—Saturday Night.

THE BOY OF THE CHAIN-GANG.

A Touching Story of Criminal Life Dews Month.

A MANIAC'S AWFUL CRIME.

Rushing Upon an Old Friend, Shooting Him Dead and Cutting His Throat.

Adelaide Phillips.

An Establishment that Feeds, Shelters, and Educates Its Employees.

(From the Fashion Courier.)

Almost everyone knows this wonderful dry goods store of Paris, but I think not many know that it is a benevolent and lovely character of Adelaide Phillips. She was without any kind of pretension, and she tells very little of the adventures or romances of her life. Amazing mishaps she made the best of, and rather enjoyed. For a concert in a country town she had one day packed her dress in a champagne basket, tied up with green ribbons. After she opened the basket in order to dress, and found to her dismay that it contained high boots, rough coat and the rest of the habiliments of some man who, oddly enough, had packed his clothes in a champagne basket tied with green ribbons. There was nothing to be done but to brush up her traveling dress and send an apology to the audience, who, however, applauded her warmly, even in her black silk. In 1879 Miss Phillips joined the Ideal Opera Company, under the direction of Miss E. H. Ober, and remained in it until December, 1881, when she made her last appearance on the stage in Cincinnati. Her friend writes of her that she never swerved from the straight and narrow way in which she walked as a woman. She sacrificed worldly prosperity to principle, and although she was a conscientious artist, her heart was in her personal life, her home, and with those friends whom she loved. Her home had been since 1860 on a farm in Marshfield, which was bought for her brother. Energetic and buoyant as her temperament was she could not conquer the illness which increased so much that she went abroad again in August, 1882, to take the waters at Carlsbad, and there in and out and down for an hour or more talked with the lady members of the family.

Finally he went out of the house and had just reached the ground when Hanson came around the corner of the house, out of breath, as if he had been running at full speed, carrying in one hand a revolver and in another a huge butcher knife. Without a word of warning he began firing at Mr. White when but a few steps from him and shot him once in the leg, a second time in the face, and a third time through the head, the bullet passing through his brain killing him instantly. Not satisfied with this, the maniac rushed upon his victim, and with the knife cut his throat in such a manner as to nearly sever the head from the body. After committing the crime, Hanson became calm and quiet again, but shows his insanity in that he manifested no regret for the deed, but claimed that it was the will of heaven.

The crime is all the more shocking because the two men have always been the best of friends and their families have always been on the most intimate terms. The crime has created great feelings in Baltimore, where there are many branches of both families in the highest circles of society, and it is the only topic at the clubs. Both are old Maryland families of the highest repute. Hanson was taken in custody after his crime and was tried for the balance of wages, amounting as he claimed, to thirty-two dollars.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to move, so pulleys are arranged which lift the kettles from the fire and place them where they are wanted. For the clerks there is a room for accounting, where there are billiard tables, chess, checkers, dominoes, etc., and for the workmen, and one for the porters, messengers, and drivers.

The menu for dinner of one day consisted of soup, one kind of meat, one kind of vegetables, and dessert, and for each person a half bottle of wine. Coffee is extra; it costs two cents for a small cup and three cents for the large ones. Three hundred people are employed in the kitchen and as waiters in the dining-rooms. The kettles are immense, three feet high, and no man could meet his arms round one of them. Of course, when full and hot, they are beyond the ability of man to

NEWS OF THE DAY

GENERAL EDITION.

A brutal attack by whites in British Columbia on Chinese, Thursday, caused the death of one Chinaman, and probably several others will die.

Henry Fleming was executed for murder at Pittsburgh, Miss., Thursday. While on the scaffold, and before his hands were pinioned, he inflicted an ugly wound in his throat with a pocket knife.

The will of the late Elizabeth McEvoy Bayard has been filed in the New York Surrogate's office. The testatrix leaves $8,000,000.

A fire in the village of Westchester, N. Y., Thursday, destroyed $20,000 worth of property. Two horses were burned to death.

The steamer Joseph T. Wilson, bound for Chesapeake Bay, All on board, except one man, were rescued.

Captain F. Kring, who after eight years' imprisonment and five trials for the murder of Dora Broome, had been discharged on bail, died in a hospital at St. Louis, Mo., on Thursday.

Mrs. Warner, a wealthy widow, attempted suicide by hanging at Waverley, N. Y., on Thursday.

At Canton, Texas, a verdict of guilty in the first degree was rendered against the Rev. Henry Smith, a Baptist minister, for killing Deputy Sheriff Day, of Haysville, two years ago.

The tragedy grew out of the arrival of Smith's brother for cattle stealing. The prisoner was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Mark Spinkler, a commercial salesman, obtained a verdict of $5,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for his services from a train.

Edward Hasson, a young man thirty-three years of age, killed Mr. Charles R. White, a man of sixty years, on Wednesday, at the Hotel Astor, New York City. Edward, Howard Young, Md., after his crime, it is said that he had carried out the will of God and avenged the death of his mother and sister. He is undoubtedly mad.

The reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, in Washington, consisting of a street parade, a reception at the White House, banquets, meetings and an evening entertainment, passed off with great cheer. Gen. Newton was elected President. He received 155 votes.

At Harrisburg, Ky., the jury is in the case of Phil R. Thompson, for the murder of Walter H. Davis, his wife's cousin, rendered a verdict of acquittal, which resulted in loss of life and considerable damage to property.

Admiral from Monroe state that the expected arrival of a war party of Northern Cree Indians into that Territory had been stopped by the combined action of General Dodge and the mounted police of Fort Walsh.

A destitute British subject, who is in charge of the British Consul in New York, claims to have been decoyed from the Island of Jamaica to Mexico in company with 100 others, who were all said to slaves on a trumped-up charge of debt.

Washington, D. C., having imposed a tax of $1 on each telegraph pole, will cut down every pole on which no tax is paid.

Three desperadoes in the Indian territory were shot and killed by a sheriff's posse.

The commander of the Freedmen's Saving and Trust Company has declared a final dividend of seven per cent, making 22 per cent. in all.

The town of Du Apolis and the village of Lexington, in British America, were both almost entirely destroyed by fire.

A Treasury check for $125,000 was drawn for the heirs of General Lee in payment for the Arlington estate, $20,000 being withheld temporarily for payment of back taxes.

The discovery of a new asteroid has been reported to Harvard College Observatory from Kiel, Prussia.

The Catholic church at Ashland, Pa., has been visited of late by a tornado which resulted in loss of life and considerable damage to property.

The greater part of Königsberg, Germany, has been destroyed by fire.

Rewards are offered in Russia by agents to induce the soldiers to despatch any of their comrades who are known to them.

The Prince of Anhalt and the Princess Frederika, the second daughter of the Crown Prince of Germany, are to be married.

FOREIGN NEWS.

A dispute from Vienna says the Sultan has agreed to convoke a Turkish Parliament, which will resemble the Assembly of 1876. It will be composed of representatives of all religions and will sit in October.

Nevs has been received that King Cetewayo having advanced to attack Omdur and Tedaga, the latter chief vacillated his forces and utterly routed Cetewayo. The first account of the engagement put the loss at 6,000 men, but this is probably exaggerated.

The Prix Figaro publishes a letter from Count de Lesseps stating that the New Canal Company proposes to cut a second canal across the isthmus.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

Pittsburgh, the sub driver, has been convicted of being an accessory in the Phoenix Park murders and was sentenced to penal servitude for life.

The King of Belgium, while riding near Brussels, on Tuesday, was run over by a bicyclist and the King was thrown to the ground.

During a popular fair in a village near Luton a horse filled with dynamite exploded, killing four persons and wounding twenty.

The town of Samara, Russia, has been almost destroyed by fire.

A collision occurred on the Caledonian Road at the Locksby junction.

A heavy goods train from Carlisle collided with a passenger express train from Shapwick. Seven passengers were killed and others injured.

The Pope has expressed his displeasure at the participation of the Irish clergy in political affairs, but wishes that no clergymen should recommend subscriptions to the Parnell fund.

There has been a rumor in London that an attempt was made to destroy an ocean steamer by means of an infernal machine on her voyage to America.

It is said that he had carried out the will of God and avenged the death of his mother and sister. He is undoubtedly mad.

The reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, in Washington, consisting of a street parade, a reception at the White House, banquets, meetings and an evening entertainment, passed off with great cheer. Gen. Newton was elected President. He received 155 votes.

At Harrisburg, Ky., the jury is in the case of Phil R. Thompson, for the murder of Walter H. Davis, his wife's cousin, rendered a verdict of acquittal, which resulted in loss of life and considerable damage to property.

Admiral from Monroe state that the expected arrival of a war party of Northern Cree Indians into that Territory had been stopped by the combined action of General Dodge and the mounted police of Fort Walsh.

A destitute British subject, who is in charge of the British Consul in New York, claims to have been decoyed from the Island of Jamaica to Mexico in company with 100 others, who were all said to slaves on a trumped-up charge of debt.

General Wallace, the United States Minister to Constantinople, has sent a note to the Porte demanding that, in the negotiations now pending, he be given some to a conclusion, the regulations is applied to the patriarchate, which is to be continued previous to the recent order, he was informed in force.

Berlin, May 12.—The Assistant Secretary in the Royal Library has been excommunicated of a charge of distributing atheistic writings and sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

The Japanese Government has proposed to China that they establish a joint protectorate over Corea, China, however, is not inclined to accept the proposal.

The greater part of Königsberg, Germany, has been destroyed by fire.

Rewards are offered in Russia by agents to induce the soldiers to despatch any of their comrades who are known to them.

The Prince of Anhalt and the Princess Frederika, the second daughter of the Crown Prince of Germany, are to be married.

Extensive Land Sales.

News from St. Elie, in the county of Mackinawie, Canada, shows that on Monday evening, about nine o'clock, a man and child took place on the bank of the River Yamachiche which blocked up its course and carried away some of farm, garden, and heavy timbered land, doing great damage in all directions. On one hand a farmer incurred the loss of four or five acres of land he had just plowed, while on another a farmer whose farm had been divided by the stream had his property joined together by the slide. This gave and take however increased his land, and he was enabled to cultivate his garden, and though the loss of his land was great, he had gained more.

In the gulf right between Sullivan and Mitchell, the English champion of Madison Square Garden, Sulphur, was devoured the winter at the time of the third round. Had the fight been with cut gloves Sullivan would have killed Mitchell.

There are grave fears that the lock-out in Cincinnati will throw 4,000 or 5,000 employees of the boat and ship manufacturers out of work.

The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

The schooner yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

—The so-called yacht Grayling while making a trial trip, was captured by a small whirlwind and sank in the Lower Bay of New York Harbor. Those on board were rescued by other yachts.

A PATENT HELD VOID.

The Owners of Green's Drive-Well Reservoir
By a Farmer's Alliance.

The Federal court at Des Moines, Iowa, has finally rendered an opinion on the question of the validity of Nelson W. Green's drive-well patent, a case that has been pending for some time. The court holds that there are two well established instances of prior use of the principle involved in this patent, one being at Independence, Iowa, where a well was sunk in the early summer of 1861 and the other at Milwaukee, where a large number were put down as early as 1849, the patent to Green not having been issued till 1888, and the application of the principle not having been disclosed and put into use by him until after the well at Independence was proved a success. The court holds that Colonel Green made no effort to prevent the use of his discovery by the public for about seven years, and it is upon this showing, more than the fact that the Iowa and Wisconsin wells antedated Colonel Green's discovery and application of the principle, that the patent is held void.

The Prix Figaro publishes a letter from Count de Lesseps stating that the New Canal Company proposes to cut a second canal across the isthmus.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.

The United States Steamer Lancaster has arrived at Liverpool with the seamen who are to represent America at the coronation of King Edward VII.

They were received with the usual honors.

At a meeting of the National League of Dallas, the members resolved to take Gothic theology from the Pope and their position from Parnell.

The Phoenix Park murder trials are ended and the special jury has been discharged.

A German Journal states that the danger of trichinosis from American pork is forty times greater than from German pork.